Ron Wyden, (chairman of the subcommittee) presiding. Chairman Wyden. The subcommittee will come to order. Today, the Subcommittee on Regulation, Business Opportunities, and Technology continues its 2-year-long inquiry into the pricing of drugs and medical devices which is the result of cooperation between taxpayer-supported, nonprofit, research laboratories and the pharmaceutical industry. The potential importance to the Nation s public health of this medical research collaboration is not in dispute. From these projects flow life-enhancing treatments for cancer, medications for cardiovascular disease, and cures for diseases and conditions that formerly meant death or a lifetime of disability for many of our fellow citizens. But this collaboration over time also has cemented the economic foundation of a very large, very profitable industry. On a continuing and increasing basis, the pharmaceutical industry mines a mother lode of valuable medical discoveries from a laboratory system that Federal taxpayers support with almost $10 billion per year. Of this $10 billion, $3 dollars of every $4 go to a university or independent lab. The Federal administrators who supervise this system appear to have little control over the prices charged by private drug manufacturers, who are their partners in either project-specific or broad-based research ventures. This system results in the commercialization of drugs discovered and developed in...
