Unaware of his bipolar disorder and while untreated he lives the typical life of a bartender in Chicago, but the combination builds to disaster. His past haunts him and his future seems impossible. All the while, day to day life rolls almost without being conscious of it. The rollercoaster ride might kill him, but the story will no doubt entertain you. Youve been to restaurants. Youve sat, youve eaten, and youve had a good time. Have you ever really thought about the people that bring you your food, the people that make your drinks, the people that do this kind of work every day Have they had a good day a bad day, is their life treating them well, did they do something to my food Dont worry that almost never happens, but what kind of people are they really The real people in the business deal with all kinds of people at all levels of tolerance and understanding. Its hard sometimes to not just hate everyone. To do this kind of work it takes a certain kind...
